Case No.: 2:14-cv-00786-GMN-BNW

ORDER

Pending before the Court is the Second Renewed Motion for Summary Judgment, (ECF No. 181), filed by Defendant Briad Restaurant Group, LLC (“Defendant”). Plaintiff Jeffrey Andersen (“Plaintiff”) filed a Response, (ECF No. 188), and Defendant filed a Reply, (ECF No. 191). Also pending before the Court is Plaintiff’s Renewed Motion to Certify Class, (ECF No. 179), to which Defendant filed a Response, (ECF No. 186), and Plaintiff filed a Reply, (ECF No. 187).

For the reasons discussed herein, Defendant’s Motion for Summary Judgment is DENIED and Plaintiff’s Motion to Certify Class is GRANTED in part and DENIED in part.

I. BACKGROUND

This case arises out of Defendant’s alleged violations of Nevada’s Minimum Wage Amendment, Nev. Const. art. XV, § 16 (the “MWA”). During all relevant times, Defendant owned and operated eight TGI Friday’s restaurants (collectively the “Restaurants”) in Nevada. (Mot. Certify 5:14–16, ECF No. 179). Plaintiff Andersen worked as a server at one of Defendant’s restaurants between July 2009 and March 2013. (Am. Compl. ¶¶ 16, ECF No. 6).

1 Plaintiff brings this action individually and on behalf of other similarly situated employees of 2 the Restaurants for whom Defendant allegedly failed to offer MWA-compliant health benefits 3 plans. (Id. ¶¶ 2, 36–39, 64); (Mot. Certify 5:10–12).

4 On September 29, 2017, the Court granted Defendant summary judgment on Plaintiff’s
5 wage-violation claim, reasoning that Defendant’s health plan was consistent with the MWA 6 and its corresponding regulations. (See Order 11:6–8, ECF No. 153). The Court based its 7 conclusion on two decisions in which the Nevada Supreme Court stated the MWA is governed 8 by the standards set forth in Nevada Administrative Code (“NAC”) 608.102. (Id. 6:16–7:12)
9 (citing MDC Rests., LLC v. Eighth Judicial Dist. Court, 383 P.3d 262, 268 (Nev. 2016) (“MDC
10 I”); W. Cab Co. v. Eighth Judicial Dist. Court, 390 P.3d 662, 670–71 (Nev. 2017) (“Western 11 Cab”)). Applying NAC 608.102, this Court found that Defendant’s health-benefits plan met 12 the four-factor test for defining health insurance. (Id. 7:13–11:8). Consequently, the Court 13 denied as moot Plaintiff’s motion to certify class and instructed the clerk of court to enter 14 judgment in favor of Defendant. (Id. 11:10–14); (see also Clerk’s J., ECF No. 154).

15 Plaintiff appealed the Court’s decision, (ECF No. 161), and during the appeal’s 16 pendency, the Nevada Supreme Court issued its decision in MDC Rests., LLC v. Eighth Jud.
17 Dist. Court, 419 P.3d 148 (Nev. 2018) (“MDC II”). In MDC II, the Supreme Court addressed 18 “whether there is some minimum quality or substance of health insurance that an employer 19 must provide for the employer to pay the lower-tier minimum wage under the MWA.” See 20 MDC II, 419 P.3d at 154. To answer this question, the MDC II Court looked to the “text, 21 history, and purpose of the MWA,” and expressly stated that “NAC 608.102 is an unworkable
22 standard for making such a determination.” Id. Declining to stray from the “simple meaning 23 found within the text and purpose of the MWA,” the Nevada Supreme Court held:

24 [A]n employer is qualified to pay the lower-tier minimum wage to 25 an employee if the employer offers a benefit to the employee in the form of health insurance of a value greater than or equal to the 1 wage of an additional dollar per hour, and covers “the employee 2 and the employee’s dependents at a total cost to the employee for 3 premiums of not more than 10 percent of the employee’s gross 4 taxable income from the employer.” Nev. Const. art. 15, § 16. An 5 employer who pays the lower-tier minimum wage will have the 6 burden of showing that it provided the employee with a benefit in the form of health insurance equal to a value of at least an additional dollar per hour in wages. If an employer cannot offer such insurance to an employee, the employer must pay the employee the upper-tier minimum wage.

7 Id. at 155–56. In light of this holding, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals remanded this case
8 for consideration. (Mem. Op., ECF No. 172). Thereafter, Plaintiff filed the instant renewed 9 Motion to Certify and Defendant filed its second renewed Motion for Summary Judgment.

10 The Court begins with Defendant’s Motion for Summary Judgment, followed by 11 Plaintiff’s Motion to Certify.

12 II. MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

13 A. Legal Standard

14 The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure provide for summary adjudication when the 15 pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with the 16 affidavits, if any, show that “there is no genuine dispute as to any material fact and the movant 17 is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a). Material facts are those that 18 may affect the outcome of the case. Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248 (1986).
19 A dispute as to a material fact is genuine if there is sufficient evidence for a reasonable jury to 20 return a verdict for the nonmoving party. Id. “Summary judgment is inappropriate if 21 reasonable jurors, drawing all inferences in favor of the nonmoving party, could return a verdict 22 in the nonmoving party’s favor.” Diaz v. Eagle Produce Ltd. P’ship, 521 F.3d 1201, 1207 (9th 23 Cir. 2008) (citing United States v. Shumway, 199 F.3d 1093, 1103–04 (9th Cir. 1999)). A 24 principal purpose of summary judgment is “to isolate and dispose of factually unsupported 25 claims.” Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323–24 (1986).

1 In determining summary judgment, a court applies a burden-shifting analysis. “When 2 the party moving for summary judgment would bear the burden of proof at trial, it must come 3 forward with evidence which would entitle it to a directed verdict if the evidence went 4 uncontroverted at trial. In such a case, the moving party has the initial burden of establishing 5 the absence of a genuine issue of fact on each issue material to its case.” C.A.R. Transp.
6 Brokerage Co. v. Darden Rests., Inc., 213 F.3d 474, 480 (9th Cir. 2000) (citations omitted). In 7 contrast, when the nonmoving party bears the burden of proving the claim or defense, the 8 moving party can meet its burden in two ways: (1) by presenting evidence to negate an 9 essential element of the nonmoving party’s case; or (2) by demonstrating that the nonmoving 10 party failed to make a showing sufficient to establish an element essential to that party’s case 11 on which that party will bear the burden of proof at trial. Celotex Corp., 477 U.S. at 323–24. If 12 the moving party fails to meet its initial burden, summary judgment must be denied and the 13 court need not consider the nonmoving party’s evidence. Adickes v. S.H. Kress & Co., 398 U.S.
14 144, 159–60 (1970).

15 If the moving party satisfies its initial burden, the burden then shifts to the opposing 16 party to establish that a genuine issue of material fact exists. Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co. v.
17 Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 586 (1986). To establish the existence of a factual dispute, 18 the opposing party need not establish a material issue of fact conclusively in its favor. It is 19 sufficient that “the claimed factual dispute be shown to require a jury or judge to resolve the 20 parties’ differing versions of the truth at trial.” T.W. Elec. Serv., Inc. v. Pac. Elec. Contractors 21 Ass’n, 809 F.2d 626, 631 (9th Cir. 1987). In other words, the nonmoving party cannot avoid 22 summary judgment by relying solely on conclusory allegations that are unsupported by factual 23 data. Taylor v. List, 880 F.2d 1040, 1045 (9th Cir. 1989). Instead, the opposition must go 24 beyond the assertions and allegations of the pleadings and set forth specific facts by producing 25 competent evidence that shows a genuine issue for trial. Celotex Corp., 477 U.S. at 324.

1 At summary judgment, a court’s function is not to weigh the evidence and determine the 2 truth but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial. Anderson, 477 U.S. at 249. The 3 evidence of the nonmovant is “to be believed, and all justifiable inferences are to be drawn in 4 his favor.” Id. at 255. But if the evidence of the nonmoving party is merely colorable or is not 5 significantly probative, summary judgment may be granted. Id. at 249–50.

6 B. Discussion

7 Defendant’s Motion for Summary Judgment presents a purely legal issue: whether the 8 MDC II decision applies retroactively. (Def.’s MSJ 5:2–15, ECF No. 181). Defendant argues 9 that, because MDC II overruled Western Cab—a decision which Defendant claims it modeled its 10 health benefits practices after—the Nevada Supreme Court would hold that equitable 11 considerations dictate that MDC II applies only prospectively. (Id. 6:16–24). Therefore, 12 Defendant contends that Western Cab supplies the relevant legal standard, and the Court’s prior 13 Order remains on solid ground. (Id.).

14 As a threshold matter, the Court notes that whether MDC II is limited to prospective 15 application is a question of first impression. Because there is no controlling law on point, “this 16 Court must predict how the Nevada Supreme Court would decide the question.” Brown v.
17 Kinross Gold U.S.A., Inc., 531 F. Supp. 2d 1234, 1245 (D. Nev. 2008); see also Gravquick A/S
18 v. Trimble Navigation Int’l Ltd., 323 F.3d 1219, 1222 (9th Cir. 2003).

19 The Court predicts that the Nevada Supreme Court would apply MDC II retroactively.
20 The Court is persuaded by the Nevada Supreme Court’s handling of retroactivity in a pair of 21 cases construing the Nevada Minimum Wage Amendment (“MWA”). See Nevada Yellow Cab
22 Corp. v. Eighth Jud. Dist. Court, 383 P.3d 246 (Nev. 2016) (“Yellow Cab”); Thomas v. Nevada
23 Yellow Cab Corp., 327 P.3d 518 (Nev. 2014) (“Thomas”).

24 In Thomas, the Supreme Court held that the MWA superseded a Nevada statute 25 exempting taxicab drivers from state minimum wage laws. Thomas, 327 P.3d at 520–22. The

1 legislature's exemption of taxicab drivers, according to Thomas, was impliedly repealed upon 2 the subsequent enactment of the MWA, which defines employees broadly and carves out
3 specific exemptions not including taxicab drivers. See id. at 521–22 (citing Nev. Const. art. 15 4 § 16).

5 Two years later, in Yellow Cab, the Nevada Supreme Court considered whether the 6 “holding in Thomas is effective from the date the opinion was published in 2014, only, or 7 whether it should apply retroactively from the date the Amendment was enacted in 2006.”
8 Yellow Cab, 383 P.3d at 247. In that case, like the present one, the employer taxicab 9 companies argued that “inequitable results will occur if taxicab drivers are provided back 10 wages for work performed prior to the 2014 opinion.” Id. at 249. The Court rejected this 11 argument, explaining that equitable balancing would be inappropriate when construing state 12 constitutional minimum wage law. Id. at 249–50. Quoting a concurrence by Justice Scalia, the 13 Court reasoned that “[t]o hold a governmental Act to be unconstitutional is not to announce that 14 we forbid it, but that the Constitution forbids it.” Id. at 250 (quoting Am. Trucking Ass’n, Inc.
15 v. Smith, 496 U.S. 167, 201 (1990) (Scalia, J., concurring)). To conclude otherwise, the 16 Nevada Supreme Court continued, would be to “presuppose[] a view of our decisions as 17 creating the law, as opposed to declaring what the law already is.” Id. (quoting Am. Trucking, 18 496 U.S. at 201).

19 Accordingly, the Nevada Supreme Court articulated the principle that when it 20 “interpret[s] a constitutional amendment and conclude[s] that it impliedly repeals a statute, that 21 decision applies retroactively to when the amendment was enacted regardless of the balance of 22 equities.” Id. at 251. Therefore, the decision in Thomas “did not create the law in 2014,” but 23 rather “declared what the law was upon enactment of the Amendment in 2006.” Id.

24 Applying Yellow Cab’s reasoning here, the Nevada Supreme Court would likely give 25 retroactive effect to MDC II. Because the Yellow Cab Court expressly held, in the MWA

1 context, that a new interpretation of a constitutional amendment applies back to the date of 2 enactment “regardless of the balance of equities,” id. at 251, this Court predicts that the Nevada
3 Supreme Court would come to same conclusion with respect to MDC II.

4 Defendant argues that the Nevada Supreme Court would likely limit MDC II to 5 prospective application because the instant case closely approximates the “paradigm case” 6 discussed in Yellow Cab as well as K&P Homes v. Christiana Tr., 398 P.3d 292, 293 (Nev.
7 2017). (MSJ 7:2–20, ECF No. 181). In these cases, the Court cautioned that equitable 8 balancing may apply in the so-called “paradigm case” “when a court expressly overrules a 9 precedent upon which the contest would otherwise be decided differently and by which the 10 parties may previously have regulated their conduct.” Yellow Cab, 383 P.3d at 251 n.5; K&P
11 Homes, 398 P.3d at 295. According to Defendant, because Defendant regulated its conduct 12 consistent with Western Cab, and given MDC II’s implicit rejection of Western Cab, this case 13 meets the paradigmatic hypothetical case alluded to in Yellow Cab and K&P Homes.

14 Preliminarily, the Court is unpersuaded by Defendant’s central premise that MDC II
15 overturned Western Cab. By its express language, MDC II distinguished rather than overturned 16 Western Cab. In Western Cab, the Nevada Supreme Court considered, among other things, 17 whether Nevada’s MWA is preempted by federal law or void for vagueness. W. Cab, 390 P.3d
18 at 666. To address these questions, the Western Cab Court looked to the text of NAC 608.102 19 to ascertain the type of benefit that would qualify as a health-insurance benefit under the 20 MWA. Id. at 670–71. In MDC II, the Supreme Court addressed “whether there is some 21 minimum quality or substance of health insurance that an employer must provide for the 22 employer to pay the lower-tier minimum wage under the MWA.” MDC II, 419 P.3d at 154. On 23 this inquiry, the Court stated that “[t]his question was not argued in Western Cab,” and that the 24 NAC—upon which the Western Cab holding was based—is “an unworkable standard for 25 making such a determination.” Id. Nevertheless, the Court reiterated that the NAC, as well as 1 other sources of law, “are primarily reference points and useful illustrations of the types of 2 benefits and coverages that insurance must cover to qualify as health insurance.” Id. (emphasis 3 in original). Thus, MDC II distinguished the constitutional inquiry before it from the 4 preemption and void-for-vagueness issue presented in Western Cab. Because the MDC II

5 Court did so without explicitly or implicitly overturning Western Cab, this Court finds no basis 6 to hold otherwise.

7 Even insofar as MDC II did overrule Western Cab, the Court nevertheless concludes that 8 the Nevada Supreme Court would treat MDC II retroactively. As noted above, the Supreme 9 Court in Thomas undisputedly did overturn existing precedent. Nevertheless, the Yellow Cab
10 Court held that Thomas applies retroactively. Yellow Cab, like the instant case, concerned 11 interpretation of the MWA and involved the defendant’s argument that inequity would result 12 were Thomas to be given retroactive treatment. Given the similarities in the cases—including 13 the same equitable arguments Defendant raises here—the Court cannot discern why this case 14 would not be treated in the same manner by the Nevada Supreme Court.

15 In sum, the Court predicts that the Nevada Supreme Court would follow its reasoning in 16 Yellow Cab and hold that MDC II clarified what the Nevada Constitution requires and did not 17 create new law. On this basis, the Court denies Defendant’s Motion for Summary Judgment.

18 III. Motion to Certify Class

19 A. Legal Standard

20 “The class action is ‘an exception to the usual rule that litigation is conducted by and on 21 behalf of the individual named parties only.’” Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Dukes, 564 U.S. 338, 22 348 (2011) (quoting Califano v. Yamasaki, 442 U.S. 682, 700–01 (1979)). “[C]ertification is 23 proper only if the ‘trial court is satisfied, after a rigorous analysis, that the prerequisites of Rule 24 23(a) have been satisfied.’” Id. at 350–51 (quoting Gen. Tel. Co. of Sw. v. Falcon, 457 U.S.

1 147, 161 (1982)). The four Rule 23(a) requirements are numerosity, commonality, typicality, 2 and adequacy of representation. Id. at 349; Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a).

3 Upon satisfying “Rule 23(a)’s prerequisites, parties seeking class certification must 4 show that the action is maintainable under Rule 23(b)(1), (2), or (3).” Amchem Prods., Inc. v.
5 Windsor, 521 U.S. 591, 614 (1997). “To qualify for certification under Rule 23(b)(3), a class
6 must meet two requirements beyond the Rule 23(a) prerequisites.” Id. at 615. First, “common 7 questions must ‘predominate over any questions affecting only individual members.’” Hanlon
8 v. Chrysler Corp., 150 F.3d 1011, 1022 (9th Cir. 1998) (quoting Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3)).
9 Second, “class resolution must be ‘superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient 10 adjudication of the controversy.’” Id. (quoting Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3)).

11 The moving party must affirmatively demonstrate that he or she meets the above 12 requirements. Parsons v. Ryan, 754 F.3d 657, 674 (9th Cir. 2014) (citing Dukes, 564 U.S. at 13 350). However, when presented with a motion to certify, a court should not “‘turn class 14 certification into a mini-trial’ on the merits.” Edwards v. First Am. Corp., 798 F.3d 1172, 1178 15 (9th Cir. 2015) (quoting Ellis v. Costco Wholesale Corp., 657 F.3d 970, 983 n.8 (9th Cir.
16 2011)).

17 B. Discussion

18 Plaintiff moves to certify a proposed class encompassing “[a]ll current and former 19 employees of Defendant at its Nevada locations who were paid less than $8.25 per hour at any 20 time since May 19, 2012, but were not provided with qualifying health benefits pursuant to 21 Nev. Const. art. XV, sec. 16.” (Mot. Certify 4:9–12, ECF No. 179). The proposed class 22 excludes “those employees who executed enforceable arbitration agreements.” (Id.).

23 Defendant opposes certification on the following grounds: (1) the proposed class fails to 24 meet the commonality and typicality requirements under Rule 23(a) because individualized 25 inquiries will be required to determine class members’ damages; (2) Plaintiff cannot satisfy the 1 predominance prerequisite because the proposed class is improperly fail-safe and would 2 otherwise require individualized inquiries; (3) litigating this matter as a class action would not 3 be a superior method of adjudicating this case in light of individualized questions of fact; (4) 4 the adequacy prong is unmet because the proposed class representative is without sufficient 5 familiarity with this case; and (5) because a majority of the putative class are bound by 6 arbitration agreements, the requirements of typicality, commonality, and predominance cannot 7 be satisfied. (Resp. to Mot. Certify 8:16–20:9, ECF No. 186).

8 The below discussion first addresses Defendant’s arguments based on Rule 23(a)’s 9 requirements, then moves to those regarding Rule 23(b).

10 1. Rule 23(a)

11 a) *Numerosity

12 Rule 23(a)(1) requires that a class be so numerous that joinder of all members is 13 impracticable. Generally, courts have held that numerosity is satisfied when the class size 14 exceeds forty members. See, e.g., Slaven v. BP Am., Inc., 190 F.R.D. 649, 654–56 (C.D. Cal.
15 2000); In re Cooper Cos. Inc. Secs. Litig., 254 F.R.D. 628, 634 (C.D. Cal. 2009). A plaintiff 16 “need not state exact figures; instead, they can satisfy the numerosity requirement by providing 17 reasonable estimates.” Sobel v. Hertz Corp., 291 F.R.D. 525, 541 (D. Nev. 2013).

18 Here, based upon Defendant’s answers to Plaintiff’s interrogatories, Plaintiff states that 19 the number of employees allegedly paid at an unlawful rate is approximately a thousand 20 persons between 2012 and March 2015. (Mot. Certify 10:20–27, ECF No. 179); (See Def.’s 21 Resp. to Interrog. Nos. 40, 45, Ex. 3 to Mot. Certify, ECF No. 179-3). Therefore, the Court can 22 safely conclude that the potential class is sufficiently numerous such that the joinder of each 23 member would be impracticable.

24 b) *Commonality

25 “A class has sufficient commonality ‘if there are questions of fact and law which are

1 common to the class.” Hanlon, 150 F.3d at 1019 (internal citation omitted). As clarified in 2 Dukes, a plaintiff must demonstrate that the class members “have suffered the same injury” and 3 that their claims “depend upon a common contention . . . of such a nature that it is capable of 4 classwide resolution—which means that determination of its truth or falsity will resolve an 5 issue that is central to the validity of each one of the claims in one stroke.” 564 U.S. at 350.

6 Plaintiff argues that this requirement is satisfied because the class members “share the 7 common question of whether they were paid below the upper-tier minimum hourly wage.”
8 (Mot. Certify 12:1–5). Defendant contends that the determination of whether it offered 9 qualifying health plans to each class member will require an individualized inquiry into the cost 10 to Defendant based upon specific employees’ schedules and rates of pay. (Resp. to Mot. Certify 11 9:7–18, ECF No. 186).

12 The Court finds that commonality is met in this case. Through written discovery, 13 Defendant acknowledged that its health benefits plans “were available to all Nevada hourly 14 employees earning less than $8.25 per hour during the period the plans were effective.” (Def.’s 15 Resp. to Interrog. No. 23, Ex. 4 to Mot. Certify, ECF No. 179-4). Because of the evidence that 16 Defendant had a uniform policy, and that Plaintiff’s proposed class is tailored to including only 17 those employees who were allegedly damaged by this uniform policy, commonality is satisfied.
18 See Cruz v. MM 879, Inc., 329 F.R.D. 639, 645 (E.D. Cal. 2019) (“Plaintiffs have demonstrated 19 the existence of a common compensation scheme and meal break policy that allegedly harmed 20 the entire class of MM 879 employees, and that showing is sufficient.”); Millan v. Cascade 21 Water Servs., Inc., 310 F.R.D. 593, 604 (E.D. Cal. Oct. 8, 2015) (“In the wage and hour 22 context, the inquiry is whether the entire class was injured by the same allegedly unlawful wage 23 and hour practice.”).

24 Defendant’s argument with respect to individualized damage inquiries confuses Rule 25 23(a)’s commonality requirement with Rule 23(b)’s “predominance” requirement. As clarified

1 by the U.S. Supreme Court, for the purposes of commonality, “even a single common question
2 will do.” Dukes, 546 U.S. at 359; see also Negrete v. Allianz Life Ins. Co. of N. Am., 287 F.R.D.
3 590, 601–602 (C.D. Cal. 2012) (“Even after Dukes, the commonality inquiry does not require 4 plaintiffs to demonstrate the “predominance” of common issues over individualized ones, nor 5 the “cohesion” of the class.”). The Court will, accordingly, address Defendant’s individualized 6 inquiry argument below in the context of the predominance prong of Rule 23(b).

7 c) Typicality

8 To demonstrate typicality, a plaintiff must show that her claims are typical of that of the 9 class. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(3). “[T]he typicality inquiry involves comparing the injury asserted 10 in the claims raised by the named plaintiffs with those of the rest of the class.” Armstrong v.
11 Davis, 275 F.3d 849, 869 (9th Cir. 2001). “The test of typicality ‘is whether other members 12 have the same or similar injury, whether the action is based on conduct which is not unique to 13 the named plaintiffs, and whether other class members have been injured by the same course of 14 conduct.’” Hanon v. Dataproducts Corp., 976 F.2d 497, 508 (9th Cir. 1992) (citation omitted).
15 Thus, the named plaintiff’s injuries need not be “identically positioned” with those of the class.
16 Parsons v. Ryan, 754 F.3d 657, 686 (9th Cir. 2014). Rather, the typicality requirement looks to 17 ensure that “the unnamed class members have injuries similar to those of the named plaintiffs 18 and that the injuries result from the same, injurious course of conduct.” Id. at 685 (quoting 19 Armstrong, 275 F.3d at 869).

20 Here, Plaintiff alleges an injury that emanates from Defendant’s uniform policy 21 impacting all class members. In response to Plaintiff’s interrogatories, Defendant stated “any 22 employee paid less than $8.25 per hour . . . was paid that rate based upon Defendant’s good-23 faith belief that Nevada hourly employees earning less than $8.25 per hour were entitled to 24 enroll and should have been offered during the period the plans were effective.” (Def.’s Resp.
25 to Interrog. No. 29, Ex. 4 to Mot. Certify, ECF No. 179-4). Thus, in addition to Plaintiff’s

1 injury being typical of that of the class members, it appears Defendant advances a good-faith 2 defense that is equally typical to Plaintiff and the class. Further, in conjunction with the 3 commonality analysis above, the fact that each class member would be subject to 4 individualized damage awards does not defeat typicality. See Hanon, 976 F.2d at 508 5 (“Typicality refers to the nature of the claim . . . of the class representative, and not to the 6 specific facts from which it arose or the relief sought.”); Torres v. Mercer Canyons Inc., 835
7 F.3d 1125, 1140–41 (9th Cir. 2016) (“In wage-and-hour disputes, such individualized damages 8 inquiries are common, and typically do not defeat certification.”).

9 d) Adequacy of Representation

10 “To satisfy constitutional due process concerns, absent class members must be afforded 11 adequate representation before entry of a judgment which binds them.” Hanlon, 150 F.3d at 12 1020 (citing Hansberry v. Lee, 311 U.S. 32, 42–43 (1940)). In Hanlon, the Ninth Circuit 13 identified two issues for determining the adequacy of representation: (1) whether the named 14 plaintiffs and their counsel have any conflicts of interest with other class members, and (2) 15 whether the named plaintiffs and their counsel will “prosecute the action vigorously on behalf 16 of the class.” Id.

17 Here, at this juncture, there is nothing in the record to suggest there is a conflict of 18 interest between Plaintiff and counsel. As to the named Plaintiff, the Court is satisfied that he 19 will vigorously prosecute the instant case. As Plaintiff points out, Plaintiff has been involved in 20 this action for four and a half years, participated in discovery, and successfully appealed the 21 instant matter to the Ninth Circuit. (Mot. Certify 15:3–8, ECF No. 179). The Court further 22 finds that class counsel, having thirty-five years of legal experience and being in charge of class 23 action and complex high damages litigation for his firm, will competently and vigorously 24 prosecute the instant case. (See Springmeyer Biography, Ex. 6 to Mot. Certify, ECF No. 179-6).

25 Defendant counters that Plaintiff is not an adequate class representative because he lacks

1 sufficient knowledge concerning this suit. According to Defendant, Plaintiff’s deposition
2 testimony shows that he is unaware of the “MWA” or what “qualified health insurance means.”
3 (Def.’s Resp. 17:12–13, ECF No. 186). Defendant also points out that Plaintiff stated he 4 reviewed the complaint for the first time a year after its filing, and testified he declined health 5 insurance because it was too expensive, rather than because of the types of services covered 6 under the plan, as asserted in his response to Defendant’s interrogatories. (Id. 17:9–18:6).

7 The Court finds that Plaintiff sufficiently fulfills the requirements for serving as class
8 representative. Defendant’s arguments as to Plaintiff’s knowledge of the suit is inconsistent 9 with the Ninth Circuit’s low bar for qualifying as an adequate class representative. See Local 10 Joint Exec. Bd. of Culinary/Bartender Tr. Fund v. Las Vegas Sands, Inc., 244 F.3d 1152, 1162 11 (9th Cir. 2001) (“The record indicates clearly that he understands his duties and is currently 12 willing and able to perform them. The Rule does not require more.”); In re Twitter Inc. Secs.
13 Litig., 326 F.R.D. 619, 628 (N.D. Cal. 2018) (“[T]he threshold of knowledge required to 14 qualify a class representative is low; a party must be familiar with the basic elements of her 15 claim [] and will be deemed inadequate only if she is ‘startlingly unfamiliar’ with the case.”).

16 2. Rule 23(b)

17 Rule 23(b)(3) permits certification where “the court finds that questions of law or fact 18 common to the members of the class predominate over any questions affecting only individual 19 members, and that a class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient 20 adjudication of the controversy” in light of, among other things, “the difficulties likely to be 21 encountered in the management of a class action.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3).

22 a) Predominance

23 Defendant first argues that Plaintiff cannot satisfy the predominance requirement of Rule 24 23(b)(3) because the proposed class definition is improperly “fail-safe.” (Def.s’ Resp. 12:2–24, 25 ECF No. 186). A fail-safe class is “one that is defined so narrowly as to ‘preclude[]

1 membership unless the liability of the defendant is established.” Torres v. Mercer Canyons
2 Inc., 835 F.3d 1125, 1138 n.7 (9th Cir. 2016) (quoting Kamar v. RadioShack Corp., 375 Fed.
3 App’x. 734, 736 (9th Cir. 2010)). To make this fail-safe argument, Defendant points to the 4 proposed class definition’s language of including persons “who were offered health benefits
5 that did not qualify Defendant to pay less than [$8.25 per hour] pursuant to Nev. Const. art XV, 6 § 16.” Defendant’s contention is that this definition mirrors the precise legal issue that defines 7 this case: whether employees received sufficient health benefits to warrant wages less than 8 $8.25. According to Defendant, for Plaintiff’s class definition to essentially use the same 9 language as the legal issue here, it will improperly prevent the Court from finding someone to 10 be a class member until after the Court resolves the merits of this class-wide dispute. (Id.).

11 The Ninth Circuit has cautioned, however, that “our circuit’s caselaw appears to 12 disapprove of the premise that a class can be fail-safe,” though the circuit has not ruled directly 13 on the appropriateness of fail-safe classes. See Melgar v. CSK Auto, Inc., 681 F. App’x 605, 14 607 (9th Cir. 2017) (citing William B. Rubenstein, Newberg on Class Actions § 3:6 (5th ed.
15 2016), which states, “many courts have held that class definitions referencing the merits of the 16 case are not necessarily problematic.”). The rationale for this caution, as suggested by the 17 circuit’s decisions, is that “[i]t is implicit in the definition of [a] class that its members are 18 persons who claim to have been (or to be)” wronged. Vizcaino v. U.S. Dist. Court for W. Dist.
19 of Washington, 173 F.3d 713, 722 (9th Cir. 1999). Because a class is similarly linked by 20 allegations of wrongful conduct, denying certification based on the definition’s mere reference 21 to the ultimate issue linking them would “preclude certification of just about any class of 22 persons alleging injury from a particular action.” Vizcaino, 173 F.3d at 722 (quoting Forbush v.
23 J.C. Penney Coe., 994 F.2d 1101 (5th Cir. 1993), abrogated on other grounds by Wal-Mart
24 Stores, Inc. v. Dukes, 564 U.S. 338, 348 (2011); see also In re Rodriguez, 695 F.3d 360, 370 25 (5th Cir. 2012). From the Ninth Circuit’s caselaw, district courts in this circuit have thus

1 permitted apparent fail-safe definitions that reference the legal issue at the heart of cases, 2 though most approved definitions are in the context of discrimination claims. See, e.g., Nevarez 3 v. Forty Niners Football Co., LLC, 326 F.R.D. 562, 572 (N.D. Cal. 2018) (certifying a class, as 4 well as others, defined as persons “who have been denied equal access to Levi’s Stadium’s 5 facilities, services, accessible seating, parking, amenities, and privileges . . .”). The circuit’s 6 disapproval of the fail-safe concept, consequently, makes Defendant’s argument “tenuous at 7 best.” Id.

8 The Court, moreover, is not persuaded that Plaintiff’s proposed definition is 9 impermissibly fail-safe and should preclude certification. As discussed in this Order’s section 10 denying summary judgment, this case draws on unique circumstances because the Nevada
11 Supreme Court has largely outlined—through objective requirements—the precise facts needed 12 to prove a violation of the MWA. Consequently, while Plaintiff’s definition references the 13 legal issue here, it does not place the Court in an untenable, fail-safe position where it could 14 determine membership only after proceeding through a series of individualized, subjective 15 determinations that ultimately resolve the merits of each person’s claim. See 1 McLaughlin on 16 Class Actions § 4:2 (15th ed. 2018) (explaining that courts “properly look below the surface of 17 the class definition” to determine if there are issues of ascertainability which should preclude 18 certification). Cf. Melgar, 681 F. App’x at 607 (“[T]he class definition did not presuppose its 19 success, because the liability standard applied by the district court required class members to 20 prove more facts to establish liability than are referenced in the class definition.”).

21 Because Plaintiff’s class definition is not impermissibly fail-safe, the next issue is Rule 22 23(b)(3)’s mandate that a case’s common questions predominate over individualized issues.
23 The predominance analysis focuses on “the legal or factual questions that qualify each class 24 member’s case as a genuine controversy” to determine “whether proposed classes are 25 sufficiently cohesive to warrant adjudication by representation.” Amchem Prods., Inc. v.

1 Windsor, 521 U.S. 591, 623 (1997); see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3); Nevarez v. Forty Niners
2 Football Co., LLC, 326 F.R.D. 562, 584 (N.D. Cal. 2018). “An individual question is one 3 where members of a proposed class will need to present evidence that varies from member to 4 member, while a common question is one where the same evidence will suffice for each 5 member to make a prima facie showing [or] the issue is susceptible to generalized, class-wide 6 proof.” Tyson Foods, Inc. v. Bouaphakeo, 136 S. Ct. 1036, 1045 (2016) (internal quotations 7 omitted). “When common questions present a significant aspect of the case and they can be 8 resolved for all members of the class in a single adjudication, there is clear justification for 9 handling the dispute on a representative rather than on an individual basis.” Cruz v. MM 879, 10 Inc., 329 F.R.D. 639, 648 (E.D. Cal. 2019) (quoting Hanlon, 150 F.3d at 1022).

11 Here, Plaintiff provides evidence to show that Defendant uniformly paid the proposed 12 class employees below $8.25 and offered a common health benefits plan each year. That 13 evidence consequently reveals a uniform corporate practice that carries “great weight for 14 certification purposes.” Senne v. Kansas City Royals Baseball Corp., 934 F.3d 918, 943 (9th 15 Cir. 2019). Further, though Defendant argues that there will need to be an individualized 16 inquiry to determine each class member’s owed wages and whether they received qualifying 17 health benefits under the MWA, there are two reasons why that argument does not counter the 18 predominance of common facts and related issues shared by the class. First, the Ninth Circuit 19 has repeatedly stated that “the rule is clear: the need for individual damages calculations does 20 not, alone, defeat class certification.” Vaquero v. Ashley Furniture Indus., Inc., 824 F.3d 1150, 21 1155 (9th Cir. 2016). Thus, while the final amount of wages owed to a class member here 22 could differ depending on an employee’s hours worked and base wage, that is not fatal to class 23 certification. See Local Joint Exec. Bd. of Culinary/Bartender Tr. Fund v. Las Vegas Sands, 24 Inc., 244 F.3d 1152, 1163 (9th Cir. 2001). Second, to the extent Defendant argues that they 25 paid part of an employee’s health benefits premiums, (Resp. 13:10–17), Defendant cites no

1 evidence that this occurred with Plaintiff or proposed class members—as Plaintiff points out in 2 the Reply. (Reply 7:26–8:1, ECF No. 187).

3 Accordingly, the common factual circumstances, common wage policy, and common 4 benefits plans at issue here guide the Court to find that common issues predominate over the 5 individualized inquiries in this matter. See Millan v. Cascade Water Servs., Inc., 310 F.R.D.
6 593, 606 (E.D. Cal. 2015) (finding predominance to be satisfied pursuant to Rule 23(b)(3) after 7 explaining that, “although the scope of the underpayment will vary from plaintiff to plaintiff, 8 the determination of whether the policies at issue actually violate [the applicable law] will 9 answer a bulk of the inquiry before the Court.”).

10 b) Superiority

11 Rule 23(b)(3) requires that a class action format be “superior to other available methods 12 for fairly and efficiently adjudicating the controversy.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3). To determine 13 superiority, Rule 23(b)(3) provides a non-exhaustive list of factors for courts to consider:

14 (A) the interest of members of the class in individually controlling the 15 prosecution or defense of separate actions; (B) the extent and nature of any 16 litigation concerning the controversy already commenced by or against 17 members of the class; (C) the desirability or undesirability of concentrating the litigation of the claims in the particular forum; [and] (D) the difficulties likely to be encountered in the management of a class action.

18 Plaintiff first argues that a class is the superior method to litigate this case because of the 19 “relatively small amount of damages at stake for each individual.” (Mot. Certify 17:10–16, 20 ECF No. 179). Indeed, since the claim here seeks recovery for minimum wage violations, the 21 potential recovery for each claimant would be greatly disproportionate to litigation costs if each 22 employee were to bring their claim individually. Courts routinely find such circumstances to 23 favor the class mechanism. See, e.g., Local Joint Exec. Bd. of Culinary/Bartender Tr. Fund v.
24 Las Vegas Sands, Inc., 244 F.3d 1152, 1163 (9th Cir. 2001). Additionally, because much of the 25 evidence in this case, according to Plaintiff, will rely on the same payroll records, computer

1 systems, insurance benefits, and testimony, the class mechanism preserves resources of the 2 Court and parties by avoiding thousands of individual lawsuits that would involve duplicative 3 discovery. The Court consequently finds that the superiority element satisfied here.

4 c) Arbitration Agreements

5 Finally, Defendant argues that, because a significant portion of the putative class 6 members are bound by arbitration agreements, typicality, commonality, and predominance 7 cannot be established. (Resp. 18:9–20:9, ECF No. 186). According to Defendant, over half of 8 the potential class members—957 out of 1,799 employees—are likely subject to arbitration, 9 necessitating individualized inquiries that would predominate over other issues in this matter.
10 (Id. 9:12–18). In response, Plaintiff does not dispute Defendant’s factual contention that 11 greater than half of the class members are subject to arbitration agreements. (Pl.’s Reply 12:23– 12 15, ECF No. 187). Rather, Plaintiff argues that the Court can address and resolve the extent of 13 enforceable arbitration agreements later in this case and after class certification. (Id. 14:9–18).

14 The Court notes that Plaintiff’s proposed class definition expressly excludes employees 15 who “executed enforceable arbitration agreements.” (Mot. Certify 4:9–12, ECF No. 179). Thus 16 the definition, facially, does not implicate commonality or typicality. Cf. Avilez v. Pinkerton
17 Gov’t Servs., Inc., 596 F. App’x 579 (9th Cir. 2015); Campanelli v. Image First Healthcare
18 Laundry Specialists, Inc., No. 15-cv-04456-PJH, 2018 WL 6727825, at *8 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 21, 19 2018). Nevertheless, the Court agrees with Defendant that the class as presently defined poses 20 significant issues for predominance because the class definition requires determination of the 21 enforceability of arbitration agreements on an individualized basis.

22 The Court, however, finds that the class definition will satisfy Rule 23’s requirements 23 with the deletion of the word “enforceable” from the class definition. See, e.g., Luviano v. Multi 24 Cable, Inc., No. CV1505592-BRO-FFM, 2017 WL 3017195, at *12 (C.D. Cal. Jan. 3, 2017)
25 (“District courts have broad discretion to modify class definitions”). This will eliminate the 1 need for hundreds of individualized “mini trials” that would otherwise inhibit determination as 2 to whether certain members are, indeed, eligible to participate in this class action. The 3 definition is hereby amended to include a class comprising:

4 All current and former employees of Defendant at its Nevada 5 locations who were paid less than $8.25 per hour at any time since 6 May 19, 2012, but were not provided with qualifying health benefits pursuant to Nev. Const. art. XV, sec. 16, excluding those employees who executed arbitration agreements.

7 Subject to this modification, the Court is satisfied that Plaintiff’s proposed class meets 8 the requirements set forth in Rule 23(a) and (b). As such, the Court grants in part and denies in 9 part Plaintiff’s Motion to Certify.

10 IV. CONCLUSION

11 IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Plaintiff’s Motion for Class Certification, (ECF No.
12 179), is GRANTED in part and DENIED in part.

13 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Defendant’s Motion for Summary Judgment, (ECF 14 No. 181), is DENIED.

15 DATED this 26 day of September, 2019.
